

PURGATORY

JULIAN GUBA

About the song

Purgatory is about existing in an emotional limbo. A connection where love has burned intensely but never reached resolution. It captures the feeling of being stuck in the aftermath of great potential, suspended between heartbreak and fulfillment. Not fully broken, not fully free, but permanently waiting for something to arrive. The song reflects the fear of being emotionally available yet repeatedly unchosen, caught in cycles of relationships that never quite manage to last. It explores inner turmoil and chaos, but also the fire that keeps burning beneath it all, slowly revealing a deeper sense of self and unrealized potential.

The production mirrors this tension. An Arabic chord progression meets dark synth textures and a rolling, driving bass in the drop, creating the feeling of a looming, almost evil presence. Over time, it becomes clear that this entity is not external, but internal, turning the track into something unsettling yet strangely empowering. Produced, mixed, and performed entirely by Julian, every element feels deliberate and interconnected. The haunting chorus melody and a brief harmonic shift in the second verse suggest a possible resolution, only for the bass to pull the listener back into the familiar state of purgatory.
